I met Shiloh about 10 years ago through Facebook when I posted pictures of an oystercatcher who has been breeding on a beach near me since 2008! Shiloh was the one her banded her. She is quite a celebrity here, sporting her yellow band 25. I always look forward to her return in the spring. Shiloh came here to her breeding spot back in 2015 to band three of her chicks. I sadly missed the opportunity to observe it. My deepest condolences to Shiloh's family and friends. Attaching a picture with one of her chicks.

One of the 2022 Isle of Shoals (NH) chicks that Shiloh kayaked to in shark-infested waters in order to band. Alive and kicking in Biddleford, ME this August.

Dark Green 06 is one of several North Carolina oystercatchers that Shiloh banded in the early 2000s who is still nesting—and fledging chicks.
